CELEBRATING 100 YEARS

It only happens once every four or five generations—the opportunity to celebrate a centennial. This year the Elbert County Historical Society is honored to announce the 100th Anniversary of the Elbert County Museum building, formerly the Kiowa High School. During the spring, volunteers were busy sprucing up the exterior of the grand old schoolhouse with a fresh coat of paint; while inside a new exhibit was designed celebrating the history of the building, and its transformation from small town high school to county museum.

Constructed in an era when one-room school districts were merging to form larger ones, the schoolhouse was built to accommodate the sudden influx of students seeking to further their education within the newly created Kiowa Consolidated School District C-2. The building with its unique Spanish Colonial Revival-themed architecture faithfully served its intended purpose for 70 years before the ECHS acquired the aging landmark in 1991.

This year’s Pioneer Fourth Celebration will include a special tribute to the building and commemorate the laying of the cornerstone on July 5, 1921.

THE STATELY OLD PINE TREES
Have you ever wondered if there was a story behind the pine grove in front of the museum? Turns out there is...

As reported by Floyd Lemmon’s Divide Review newspaper on April 24, 1925, it was a beautiful spring day – Arbor Day to be exact – and the high school students had spent much of the morning measuring, digging and working the soil in front of the schoolhouse, getting it ready to plant one hundred yellow pine seedlings.

Around noon the work was completed and the school kids, parents and town folk enjoyed a fine lunch inside the high school building. An Arbor Day program followed, complete with skits, recitations and choreographed drills. The newspaper gave high praise for the program stating: “All the numbers were very good. The drill given by sixteen of the girls was very well done, and fitting for the occasion... Those who missed seeing the program missed a lot. Come out to school affairs. We need your support.”

The following week the paper gave a brief update to events that transpired shortly after the Arbor Day event: “May 1, 1925. The man who ran over the tiny pine trees at the H.S. Building should be thoroughly ashamed of himself, since the trees were unable to get out of his way. The students have classed him at the head of the list of mean men.”

Never-the-less, the majority of the seedlings survived and thrived in the years that followed. Some have succumb to disease and others simply to the ravages of time, but as the pine grove nears its centennial about thirty trees remain from the original one hundred.

LAYING THE CORNERSTONE
The cornerstone of the schoolhouse (museum) building was laid on July 5, 1921. A large crowd turned out that afternoon to witness the ceremony and watch members of the Masonic Lodge place the stone in position.

After the opening prayer, the dedication was performed by Acting Grand Master L.D. Crane, Grand Secretary W.W. Cooper and officers of the local lodge. Following the dedication, the school children led the crowd in the singing of “America”, after which Mr. Crane made a short address in which he paid tribute to our schools as being the great temples of civilization. However it’s reported that he had to cut his talk short as threatening clouds were coming up, “which was a great disappointment, as he was a good talker and had the attention of young and old”.

Answers:  a) Bijou Basin;  c) William Reilly;  a, b & c)
School Teacher, County Official and Bank President

Annie C. Reilly was born in Sacramento, California, on August 26, 1858, the daughter of Thomas and Martha (Hardy) Shockley. As a child, she and her younger brother were baptized into the Catholic church and her early education was received in a convent. Her scholastic attainments braced a fine knowledge of French, German, Spanish, and Latin. She was a very talented musician and an artist of note. Annie’s father, Tom, died when she was eleven, and her mother remarried the following year to Stephen Holden. The family moved to Colorado shortly thereafter and settled near Bijou Basin, where five more daughters were born. During the late 1870’s, Ms. Shockley taught in schools along Running Creek. On July 1, 1879, she was united in marriage to Haskel Willard at Bijou Basin, to which union were born three children: a daughter, Eva Louise, and two sons, George and Thomas “Fern”. George was the only one to grow to adulthood. In 1902, Annie was granted a divorce from Haskel.

Annie’s educational qualifications were put into service in Elbert County around the turn of the century, when she was elected County Superintendent of Schools and served for six years, from 1896 to 1902.

In 1902 she was united in marriage to Kiowa merchant king, William D. (W.D.) Reilly.

As Kiowa and Elbert County grew and thrived in the early 1900’s, the Reilly’s were active in many community organizations and business endeavors. W.D. was Kiowa’s first mayor and they both worked for the upbuilding and well being of the town. From 1914 to 1918, he was a member of the Colorado State Senate. In 1920, William and Annie traveled to San Francisco where he was one of Colorado’s delegates to the Democratic National Convention. At the time of his death in 1924, he was President of the Kiowa State Bank, an officer of the Elbert County Bank and the Elizabeth State Bank. After his passing, Annie went on to serve as the first and only female president in the history of the Kiowa State Bank.

More than sixty years of her life were spent in Elbert County, where she knew almost everyone and everyone knew her. It may be truly said that her interests in public welfare were very wide, sincere and helpful. Her charitable heart won the love and respect of many people. After her death, the children of Kiowa and the surrounding area especially missed her at Christmas time, which for many years, it was her practice to distribute gifts to each and every child in the community.

Mrs. Reilly died at the home of her son at Ovid, Colorado, on October 9, 1936. The Reilly’s are buried at Evergreen Cemetery in Colorado Springs.

EARLY PIONEERS EXHIBIT

The early settlers came on horseback, by covered wagon and train. They built shelters of sod and rough-cut logs. To make a living, they planted corn, potatoes, beans and grain. Wells were dug in the creek beds to provide water so desperately needed by stock and man.

And in spite of the hardships, those early pioneers remained. The perseverance, courage and hope which they brought to a new land continues to guide Elbert County today.

The Early Pioneers exhibit features over 80 family biographies; some of whom became the namesakes of early settlements and post offices, while others became local or state officials.
ELBERT COUNTY MUSEUM SPONSORS

While the museum receives funds through monetary donations given at the museum and with annual historical society memberships; Season Sponsorships and the Pioneer Fourth celebration are the main areas of income which allow the Elbert County Historical Society to develop exhibits and educational opportunities and to improve and maintain the museum building.

Thank you for your commitment to the educational and historical importance of the Elbert County Museum!
